Healthcare Waste Management

Waste management in the healthcare industry has to be more effective than ever before due to the pandemic. With the rapid spread of the virus in Ireland, healthcare facilities are constantly dealing with COVID-19 patients. Proper waste disposal is more important than ever in order to contain the virus and prevent cross-contamination.

The HSE and the WHO have recommended a standard operating procedure for waste management with special emphasis on the handling and disposal of contaminated waste.

Waste Management Guidelines

- ⊕ Healthcare Risk Waste must be packaged into UN-approved yellow bags
- ⊕ Sharps, pharmaceutical, anatomical (excluded risk) waste should continue to be segregated into UN-approved yellow rigid containers
- ⊕ Anyone handling medical waste should be equipped with correct PPE & RPE
- ⊕ Medical waste should be bagged and put into UN-Approved yellow Wheelie Bin
- ⊕ Non healthcare risk waste (i.e. commercial/domestic) should be collected by the regular non-hazardous waste contractor for recycling and energy recovery
